

USAID's Engendering Industries Best Practices Framework for Advancing Gender Equality in Male-Dominated Industries:

3.3 Encourage managers and other employees to actively work to integrate new hires in their first year of employment

About Your Gender Equality Plan

The following Gender Equality Plan was generated using Engendering Industries' online tool: The Best Practices Framework for Advancing Gender Equality in Male-Dominated Industries. The best practices listed in this plan were identified and included to fill gender equality gaps at your organization. The information included in your plan provides an overview of how to implement best practices, challenges to implementation, and markers of success. More information and resources for advancing gender equality at your company are available at EngenderingIndustries.org.

Description

Ensure that newly hired women and men are equally introduced to important stakeholders

Establish social events (mixed-sex and women-only), informally and formally, to introduce new employees to other employees within the company, including managers and leaders

Create informal support structures for new hires, such as a buddy system^[1] or networks (see below)

Create peer-to-peer learning groups, in addition to a buddy system, to support new women and men who join the organization

Integrate new female employees into the company's existing women's network/association or other networks in the workplace

Challenges to Implementation

Time constraints of management and peers

No person in place to develop the process and lead initiatives

Corporate or local culture may not be supportive of informal gatherings of women and men

What Success Looks Like

All new hires feel welcome and fairly treated, experiencing an inclusive work culture from day one

Women and men have the same opportunities to establish inclusive, informal networks
